Records don't pinpoint this Bisaya's family roots

By Victor D. Manawao
Contributor

SCHE accounts of Blessed Pedro Calungsod's origins point to his Visayan lineage. But historians have difficulty confirming which part of the Visayas he truly came from in the absence of material proof.

Since he was beatified in 2000, many Calungsods have surfaced, particularly those from Cebu, Leyte and Iloilo, claiming kinship. Without a doubt, Calungsod came from the ecclesiastical territory of Cebu, which, during his time, covered the entire Visayas and Mindanao, as well as the Marianas. The term "Bisaya," however, is a generic term that may refer to a person who comes from any town in the Visayas.

Traditional baptism records, the national Calungsod does not provide a lead in tracing his origins. The fact that he was an "ado" and lay helper was enough for him to merit a mass funeral in the context of the martyrdom of the Spanish Jesuit

Infant healed, thanks to Pedro, says grandma

By Carino M. Auzilia

TOLEDO CITY, Cebu—Every day Paula Pintos takes her grandson to the image of Blessed Pedro Calungsod in the parish church in Bantayan, Cebu, to pray for him.

Rose is fulfilling a promise she had made to the Visayan church martyr, who, she believes, healed her grandson.

Rose, 54, was in tears when she told the Inquirer how the young boy, now 10, was healed. Pedro Calungsod Parish Church, the first church in Cebu to bear the name of the boy martyr and just 40 meters from her house in Bantayan while baby Arnel Miguel was under its shelter, once in hospital for congenital pneumonia.

"I was so afraid that something bad might happen to my grandson. So I went to Mass every day and prayed before the image of Calungsod and asked him to cure Miguel from the illness," Rose said, speaking in Cebuano.

Blessed Calungsod heard her prayers, she said.

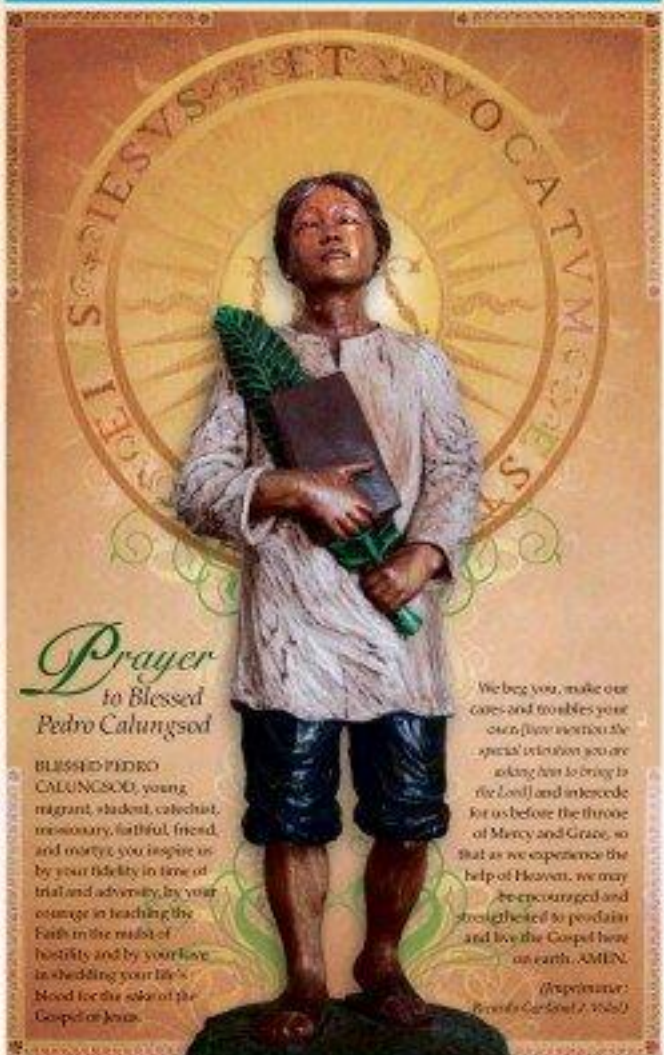

After 15 days of intensive care, the baby recovered, and was released from hospital.

Rose believed it was a miracle by Blessed Pedro Calungsod.

Prayer to Blessed Pedro Calungsod

BLESSED PEDRO CALUNGOSOD, young migrant, student, catechist, missionary, faithful friend, and martyr, you inspire us by your fidelity in time of trial and adversity, by your courage in teaching the Faith in the midst of hostility and by your love in shedding your life's blood for the sake of the Gospel of Jesus.

We beg you, make our cares and troubles your own. Have mercy on the special petition you are asking him to bring to the Lord and intercede for us before the throne of Mercy and Grace, so that as we experience the help of Heaven, we may be encouraged and strengthened to proclaim and live the Gospel here on earth. AMEN.

President declares Nat'l day of Celebration

By Arlene Mayol
Inquirer Iloilo

TODAY, 340 years after giving up his life for God, Pedro Calungsod joins the saints, with Pope Benedict XVI raising him to the altar of canonization rites in Rome.

President Aquino has declared today National Day of Celebration in honor of Pedro Calungsod.

Malacañang calls it a "day of your spiritual joy" for the Filipino nation.

Four thousand Filipino pilgrims, including politicians and government officials, are in Rome to attend the canonization rite and Mass at St. Peter's Square at 9:30 a.m. (4:30 p.m. Philippine time).

According to the records, Pedro Calungsod, a teenage mission helper from the Visayas, and Fr. Pedro Luis de San Antonio were killed by 18 Filipinos in Zamboanga, Guernsey, for converting and baptizing the natives on April 2, 1672.

Aside from Calungsod, six other "Blesseds" from different countries will be elevated to sainthood. They are Jacopo Berthelme of France, Giovanni Battista Placento of Italy, Maria del Carmen of Mexico, and others.

MANILA CITY—Today the eyes of the Pinoy are turned toward Rome.

A Filipino youth in the 17th century became just the second saint from this country that has been a Christian nation for almost half a millennium.

Pedro Calungsod, a missionary martyr in the Marianas on April 2, 1672 with his companion, Pedro Diego San de San Antonio (now a Blessed himself), will be officially proclaimed, together with his sister, in the Vatican, or rather, in the Vatican.

Mining, eco concerns up at UP forum

Mining issues and environmental concerns will be discussed at the Kaplan Mining Forum on 31st, a public service project of the University of the Philippines. Mining Association (UPMA), on Oct. 27 from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the Sunken Hall of Ang Balara ng Alumni on 6, Wapagway Avenue in UP Diliman, Quezon City.

The resource person will be Walter

PVB, Brown, a 43-year veteran of the mining industry who has managed such organizations as Shasta Mining, American Gold, Surigao Consolidated Mining, Wapagway Industrial Mining, Araya Mining and South Eastern Mining. Brown's parties are invited to join in the discussion.

The Kaplan, held every two months, is aimed at serving as a regular forum for constructive discussions of issues concerning the Filipino people's development as a nation. The UPMA believes that such public discussion is a valuable tool for getting concerned leaders and the history involved in the industry and its sub-industries exposed by these issues.

For inquiries, call the UPMA Secretariat at 9206671, 9206688, 9206675 or 9217-8372896, or e-mail upma@up.edu.ph.

'What a wonderful gift to the youth of our land'

They have been heroes, and must have made today their own, in abundance and love.

The pray that Pedro Calalang may come alive for our young people, especially for our young men, because they may give them to "be on their own with faith" and make their lives, lives of us, so that both their faith in the most and power of the Cross and Resurrection in human history. The martyr as a gift of God to us. On Oct. 18, 1906, the gift of life which Brother Francisco gave, at Marikina, Pinar del Rio, was not only to those of his own age, deep questioning of their own lives and their own faith, it operational all the part of us too, asking us what was the real meaning of our existence and our lives, asking us whether there was any truth in the worldly things of this world.

And to those heroes, even more the cross for them. Pedro Calalang's conversion should be an lesson of rejecting and rejection for the Church in our country, and a conversion in authenticity and courage, a conversion which his death at the dawn of midnight steps on a rampart call in the depths of our hearts, there where our dreams lie, waiting to be reawakened, waiting to come true.

As we think of Pedro, perhaps long as what he was like, we can in our minds the scenes of his life, perhaps he will come to life in our imaginations, and in our hearts. Something like this has happened to me, I think, as I have tried to find out more about him and his death. I think I should have seen him in my life, not only in the Visayas, but in all of our land. Surely he prays for us and our country, because he must, as he was, keep a heart for this land from which he came, the land he gave up to give his life for the spreading of the Gospel, finally to put out his hand on the shores of another land, of another people, across the seas.

ROSETOWN BKA MASS GOSPEL Catholics devotees carry the statue of Pedro Calalang in a procession as St. Gregory the Great Parish in his own parish headquarters in Marikina, Cebu, on Saturday to millions of pilgrims gear up for the commemoration of the Pinoy missionary killed 104 years ago.

4,000 Pinoy pilgrims, 2nd saint ...

... then, missionaries, by Pope Benedict XVI in Rome.

Yes, he means that Pedro Calalang and many will be canonized, if not a canon saint. After all, it took 100 years for him to get noticed by his fellow Pinoyans from Manila.

One day try to wonder how who this man led on the journey of faith in attendance at St. Peter's Square in the Vatican are 4,000 pilgrims from the Philippines, joined by thousands of others from other countries.

Majority of the Filipino pilgrims came from Cebu and neighboring Visayas provinces, as Calalang is identified in the records as a Filipino. But the records show that St. Peter's, everyone will carry his own little flag and wear the same flag.

Leading members of the Church's hierarchy are there for the singular event, led by Cebu Archbishop Antonio Ricardo Cardinal Vidal, the archbishop of Calalang's hometown, where while still Archbishop of Cebu.

Also there is the primate, Archbishop of Manila and Primate Cardinal Rodrigo Garcia, the Archbishop of the Philippines, Archbishop of Manila, Manila Archbishop Luis Antonio Tagle, and other members of the Philippine episcopate, as well as a good number of priests from the different dioceses of the country.

SOMEONE TO WATCH OVER THE YOUTH In front of the statue of the would-be saint, Catholic pilgrims for the canonization of St. Pedro Calalang at the San Juan del Monte Shrine in San Juan City.

Pedro, not Prada

These visitors to Rome had been given spiritual formation as part of their preparation for the canonization. A one-hour on the life and vision of Blessed Pedro Calalang was required for those who registered their intention to be canonized.

Emphasis was given to their going to Rome to participate in a religious event. In other words, their focus should be focused on Pedro, not on Prada, one of which could cause him, someone.

In Rome, prior to the big day, liturgical celebrations were held up to keep the pilgrims united in the faith event.

A Vigil, on the three-day preparatory liturgical celebration, was held in different churches during Oct. 18. Contemplative and spiritual talks were also conducted.

Can provide sparks of enlightenment

... toward deeper commitment.

Twenty-five years after San Lorenzo was canonized by Pope John Paul II, we are given another model of Christian witness.

Dialogue with the young

And St. Juan Lorenzo is a missionary and guide to Filipino family men in particular. San Juan Calalang's end, even though the young man was in the hands and arms of the youth.

The youth have long been called the hope of the modernized. The end result is that many would give up their faith and promise even they can put their youth.

Along the way, many will be in a good way.

Others would discover new skills and learn in life that will point them to the stars of their dreams, often coming through innovative and progressive ways, which will be necessary, or even possibly to survive.

Challenges to the young and new

... to be more than just the rest of our own generation.

Faithful Pedro

Pedro Calalang once used to be something good that he only believed in, and then turned out to be the rest of his life.

On that fateful day in Marikina, Cebu, Pedro could have opted to protect himself by fighting back, or more accurately by running away.

But Pedro provided that early morning, smiling, he remains, by the word of our Lord: "Whoever lives his life for his friends" (Mt. 11:29).

Pointed to the end, he was called the "half-bred" heroism from his childhood.

Pedro was the first to fall, dying a martyr's death in the hands of those who were not of the faith.

Now he is honored as an example for all those who, under the banner of his faith, follow in his footsteps and offer their lives for Christ and for the world.

His name prays for the youth of our country, for the youth of our country, for the youth of our country, for the youth of our country.

His name prays for the youth of our country, for the youth of our country, for the youth of our country, for the youth of our country.

Discrimination now criminal offense in Cebu City

By Dora Borogon
Special Report

Cebu City—Coping a Muslim girl every two school for wearing hijab, a traditional Muslim veil, and denying treatment to an HIV-positive patient.

are some criminal offenses in this city. The Cebu City Council on Wednesday passed an ordinance that makes discrimination against people with disabilities a crime punishable with a fine of P1,000 or imprisonment of a day in court in both.

Discrimination acts like these should not be considered inevitable, especially in Cebu City.

Article 4 of the ordinance prohibits discrimination of anyone because of gender, disability, age, health status, sexual orientation, ethnicity and religion.

Discrimination also includes denying any one access to any social or health programs and services, admission to an educational institution, registration and enrollment and access to a facility or establishment on the basis of religion, race and orientation or ethnic background.

Gold plants in Diwalwal to relocate

DUMOG CITY—The Mines and Geosciences Bureau (MGB) in southern Mindanao will oversee the pullout of all gold processing plants in Mt. Diwalwal in Misamis, Compostela Valley. Following the rise in levels of mercury and other toxic substances in Nabore River, a key source of water for farming in the province.

Isabelle Arana, MGB director, said the full-scale and batch processing plants will be moved to the industrial processing zone in Barangay Malinao, Misamis Oriental.

This relocation to the Malinao processing zone was necessary, said Arana. The zone has tailings facilities that can put a stop to the direct discharge of toxic wastes from gold processing into waterways.

The Malinao, said Arana, is the only lasting and long-term solution to the problem of how to handle toxic wastes from gold processing by thousands of small-scale miners.

The Malinao zone was built with the help of the Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) and the Philippine Mining Development Corp. (PMDC), a government enterprise overseeing the operations of small-scale miners in Compostela Valley.

It cost more P28 million and finished in 2010. But it was never used for gold processing by the small-scale miners, who continued to use their facilities in Mt. Diwalwal, he said.

Arana said the transfer of the gold processing plants in Malinao could start as soon as PMDC finishes establishing the zone.

The PMDC is required to rehabilitate the tailings dump facility and develop the infrastructure, among others, he said.

Arana said by then, the MGB would also have completed its information drive among miners on the need to relocate the processing plants.

Unless the plans are implemented, Arana said the mercury contamination of Nabore River would worsen.

Nabore River supplies irrigation water to rice fields in Compostela Valley.

Arana said based on recent tests, the river's total mercury content exceeded levels set by the DENR which is 0.05 milligrams per liter (mg/L). The most recent tests made in the river showed that mercury levels there are as high as 1.25 mg/L, a dramatic increase from 0.01 mg/L that was the result of previous years.

The volume of suspended solids in that monitoring station was also high although records of 2014 for mercury levels showed there to be within limits, Arana said.

Mt. Diwalwal has not been declared a mercury-contaminated area through small-scale miners operations there under government supervision.

One of the most gold-rich areas in the country Mt. Diwalwal also known as Mt. Diwalwal, could not be declared a Mining Hazard Area since it is currently a national recreation area in large-scale mining, he said.

Arana said. Arana thanked Inspector Roldan.

44-yr-old law giving free burial for poor exhumed

MANILA—Four risk in this city finally secured passage of a decree burial after 44 years and Church leaders found copies of a 44-year-old ordinance and on eleven years-old local donation that state burying the poor a local government obligation.

The Private Memorial Park (PMP) Cemetery in Manila said the city government the legal basis to ask police contractors to shift 5 persons of their last but twenty burial, where PMP's remains interred.

The officers requested to retrieve a copy of the ordinance last year.

Provisional buried about it in 1970 after it was retrieved from the PMP's records, which was also subject to that Mayor Degustano.

The first private cemetery to comply with the ordinance was Holy Mary Memorial Park.

Police Department, representing the family that owns the memorial park, signed a memorandum of agreement with the city government in 2014 with regard to PMP's facilities.

The agreement was signed to provide for the use of 200 acres of land, some of which are now owned by the city government through a subsidiary under Manila.

BCDA agrees arbitration right path in John Hay

MANILA—The House Commerce and Development Committee (BCDA) has submitted an affirmative to act in dispute with the developer of Camp John Hay over what the BCDA and the developer's P1-billion debt.

Lawyer Ariel Tacanan, BCDA president, said on Friday that the agency's latest set of documents has been submitted to the Supreme Court in the Philippines (Supreme Court) and is waiting for the arbitration agency to schedule trials.

Commerce had a public consultation here on the segregation of 14 villages from Camp John Hay.

Manila, Philippines

DOCTORS and nurses still remember the first night when a 3-year-old Malagasy girl, Melly Danabon, arrived at German Doctors' Hospital here, diagnosed with a severe case of diarrhea.

"She never cried," recounted Dr. Gabriel Vio Velasco, a German doctor stationed specializing in diarrhea and gastroenterology who also worked in a psychiatric hospital. "She just sat there and cried, and the nurses, the medical staff and the nurses, they could no longer keep her child," she recalled.

Hearing a voice

It was only two days later when the father heard the girl making gagging sounds, and being crying. "Oh, she has a voice after all, and that was very nice to hear," Vio Velasco said.

In 2005, Melly was diagnosed with severe acute malnutrition (SAM), which is called "hunger" disease that causes a metabolic syndrome that could mean the growth and even cause the death of young children.

Melly was one of four SAM cases treated at German Doctors' Hospital in August that year, said German Doctors' Hospital nurse Milla Koppig. Health statistics show that SAM still affects 7.3 percent of less than 5 million Filipino children under five.

Deafly silence

One knows a child suffers from severe acute malnutrition when the child can't cry or laugh anymore, according to Dr. Vio Velasco, program head for nutrition of the German Doctors' Hospital, known internationally as German Doctors in Manila or GDF International.

"They stop crying," he said. "Parents find it difficult to hear their child, despite the fact that children could not help anymore."

"Because most of their organs have already collapsed, in fact, and their bodies could no longer absorb the food," he said.

Milk for care

GDF International is one of the first humanitarian organizations to bring the integrated management for severe malnutrition (IMM) treatment to children suffering from severe acute malnutrition in the areas of Manila and President Bonifacio in North Cotabato, and Espaseno in Lanao del Sur, sites of the "German" program, supporting the sustainable development of communities with the support of the Spanish Development Cooperation in the Philippines.

Initiated for the first time in the Philippines in 2007 by the international group Melilla and Fundación (Doctors Without Borders) in eight sites in Mindanao, the treatment starts with giving sick children therapeutic milk formula in place of food.

The treatment came with another revolution that led to a humanitarian crisis in Central Mindanao. It was implemented later by the international group for the Children and ACP International.

Parent helper

To boost appetite and body metabolism improved, sick children access to a protein balancing protein, early called Ratione Protein, as they could lose because of their malnutrition.

From July, in July 2010, the program, ACP International, at least 147 cases of severe acute malnutrition and 245 moderate cases among children received in President Bonifacio, Manila, North Cotabato, and 50 cases of severe acute malnutrition and 120 moderate cases in Espaseno, Lanao del Sur.

Using the IMM protocol, 88 percent of their cases had been treated successfully, as ACP International report said.

Vulnerable

In its mission of acute malnutrition, ACP International, the Philippines, ACP International and the World Health Organization (WHO) have been the most vulnerable to global malnutrition.

"It's not properly managed, children with severe acute malnutrition are 5-6 times more likely to die than normal children," the program report said. "But cases of severe acute malnutrition in ACP International are usually reduced in ACP International's partner hospitals, which include Dr. Gerardo Morales Memorial Hospital in Marikina, Laguna del Sur, and the Marikina Hospital Development Center Inc. (MDHC) in Marikina City.

The German Doctors' Hospital also has the Manila and President Bonifacio sites.

But Padian said IMAM, a health protocol adopted by the Department of Health, is only one component in addressing severe malnutrition in areas where the German program is being implemented.

"For most communities, it is critical that they have access to Food, water and livelihood to curb the hunger problem," he said.

Violence equals hunger

Padian said these isolated border regions tend to adapt an isolated approach to combat hunger, which requires not only caring children with severe malnutrition but also helping communities develop sources of food, possible water and health intervention facilities.

To make the program more sustainable, program personnel added a "good governance" component, involving local governments as "partners" and making them accountable for the health and well-being of their people.

Padian said the Philippines was not the only of the countries where the situation both are not just fighting over access to malnutrition cases. Tackling acute malnutrition, however, are found in areas affected by armed conflict, Padian said.

"International conflict not only does not displace people but also affects their food security by forcing them to flee, or that they could no longer go to their farms to work, or the communities end up with hunger as food is lost," he said.

Signs of progress

Amidst these has consistently passed the highest incidence of malnutrition in North Cotabato for several years before the project began. But its local government has also started a nutrition and agriculture project, supporting indigenous practices.

The German program has already led to the construction of potable water systems and sanitation facilities in the border towns of Marikina and Marikina, and the President Bonifacio, Manila, and Marikina City.

"In some communities, basic facilities are the absence of these are already up to life and health and Padian. Better potable water comes in Marikina City, the village has seen a high number of deaths because of this fact."

48 villages

The child Melly was first given the IMM treatment. After several half weeks, she started to regain her appetite and moved on to P200 treatment. Health workers are looking forward to the day that she will be strong enough to go home, the facility said from the German Doctors' Hospital in Manila.

Apart from the lack of potable water and sanitation facilities that might have caused her death, the first place health workers are also worried about the child's malnutrition at home. Melly had 48 other siblings, five brothers, seven sisters, but no more siblings.

'Bayanihan' spirit alive in Hawaii

By Mary Grace Acosta-Troes

WITNESS: settled in Oahu, Maui, Hawaii, and Honolulu, and in the United States, but the Filipino diaspora has retained the character of 'bayanihan'—Pinoy spirit, not just work, but life.

Having been privileged to live among them, I am a little bit of a 'bayanihan' spirit, not just in my work, but in my life. I am a little bit of a 'bayanihan' spirit, not just in my work, but in my life.

While some critics might say that the Filipino diaspora's success is a result of hard work, I believe it is a result of the 'bayanihan' spirit. This is a result of the 'bayanihan' spirit, not just in my work, but in my life.

Recently I learned that a young man who had just graduated from the University of Hawaii had been elected to the position of President of the Filipino Community Center (FCC) in Hawaii. This is a result of the 'bayanihan' spirit, not just in my work, but in my life.

MORE REASONS IT'S SO TIME TO SWITCH

Do you ever stop to think how much you spend on your daily essentials? Things like coffee, toothpaste, soap, shampoo add up to a pretty hefty chunk of change over, say, a month's time. That's why so many people are going with our Watson's Label. You get great quality and save a good amount of money at the same time. And here's the 750-00 US sale so when you buy 7500 worth of Watson's Label products, you get an extra 750 off! Do you need any more reasons to switch? Well, just in case, here are a few extra saving tips from a true high profile doctor.

Watson's has everything you need to make your life easier and more comfortable.

TESSA'S TIPS

"People are out here. I can afford to sleep up late. I'm not all the time. The everyday is one big party. Simple. I have good and generous design friends. And I also have good friends. I love Watson's Label because it takes care of my basic needs. I'm already saving them so I can really spend on the things that I love most. It makes me look good, feel good, have fun!"

PATTY'S PHILOSOPHY

Watson's has been my go-to place for all my health and beauty needs. And I love how in the Philippines, we have Watson's in every corner. I love how Watson's introduced their infinite products. I tried it out. I was happy to find out that not only were they significantly cheaper, they proved to be of top-grade quality too. It was so easy for me to make the change. I've been switching and saving ever since. I love Watson's Label facial lotion, hand soap, body lotion, and even Watson's hair. I'm able to save more on my daily needs, which means I can spend a bit more on my family and have Watson's!"

VICTOR'S VERDICT

"Everyone knows how good they are. We go inside a store and get what we want. We don't like thinking too much about a purchase. Now, what else can you ask from a label that means quality and affordability? If you're honest, you need a shower that's not too expensive but gives smoothness on your skin, get Watson's Label. You need a moisturizer that does the job, choose Watson's Label. And so on!"

Then you have it. Great quality, great savings, and overall, some great advice from some smart shoppers. Remember, we'll have you out of your house, run out to Watson's and take advantage of the 750 00 US sale. There's never been a better time to switch and save.

In Manila, the leading headlines of a motorcycle apparently caused the attack on a 33-year-old delivery boy in a "bushy" area where a party was being held on Pinar Street, Manila, before dawn on Saturday.

SPOT Charles Jones of the Manila Police District said two men on a bike stopped in front of the court and one of them fired at StarHub, 23, and the companion Raymundo de Cruz.

Grange was later declared dead in Mary Johnson Hospital while de Cruz sustained a gunshot wound in the stomach.

While parked, the headlights of the motorcycle hit several times while passing out at the victim. Grange was then shot in the head," Jones said.

Witnesses tried to chase the gunmen but the latter waved them off by firing shots in the air at Bay Road, he added. After Aurilio, Maricor Miranda and Nancy C. Gonzalez

HANDALUYONGS AGAIN MOVS MOST CHILD-FRIENDLY CITY

Handaluyong City Mayor Benjamin C. Alcala Jr. and wife Carmelita Alcala received the Most Child-Friendly City Award for National Capital Region from the Regional Council for the Welfare of Children (RCWC) represented by DENR-Adm. Director Chris Sison and lawyer Grace Aguilera from Manila. The city also received a check amounting to P30,000 as cash prize for being the Most Child-Friendly City (Region-1) in the country last year. The city was cited for its outstanding services and solid commitment to uphold children's welfare through sustained programs and developmental practices particularly in the areas of health and nutrition, education, protection, social welfare and youth participation. Handaluyong will again represent the NCR in the Presidential Award for Most Child-Friendly City on the national level. Also in photos are members of the CHC regional awards committee, city and barangay officials and department heads.

Smart, StarHub fire up LTE roaming links

Wireless services leader Smart Communications, Inc. (Smart) has secured another first in the Long Term Evolution (LTE) arena with the opening of an LTE roaming interconnect link with Singapore's StarHub.

Interconnect links provide the infrastructure needed to connect subscribers of one operator to the network of another operator, a crucial first step toward commercial roaming.

"After being the first and only telco to commercially launch a multiband LTE network in the Philippines, Smart solidifies its dominance in the LTE space by being the first Philippine telco to open an interconnect link with a foreign operator," said Smart Executive Vice President and Head of Wireless Consumer Division Francisco Lomera.

Smart's partner in this deal is StarHub, an inter-communications company in Singapore with an LTE network providing coverage speeds of up to 150 Mbps.

For its part, Smart is offering a multiband LTE plan that already allows unlimited internet surfing at roaming speeds. Smart also recently introduced the Smart LTE Perfect WiFi, which allows people to enjoy LTE speeds in any 4G-enabled device.

Currently the Asian fourth-generation (4G) wireless networks in the world, LTE is capable of speeds as fast as 100 Mbps, making it ideal for high-speed, bandwidth applications. It allows users to stream high-definition (HD) videos, download HD movies in minutes and play lag-free online games.

Smart is already in talks with other industry giants in Asia regarding LTE roaming partnerships, which will allow Smart subscribers to surf the Internet at roaming speeds abroad.

Discussions are currently ongoing between Smart and Japan's NTT DoCoMo, Hong Kong's Hutchison Telecommunications, and South Korea's SKT Corp.

"Our links with StarHub are already up and we speak, but we continue to pursue interconnect links with other leading telcos under the Connect Mobile Alliance. We are working hard to turn this into a commercial service soon," said Tina Marivic, Group Head of Smart's Global Access and International Services.

Smart, NTT DoCoMo, Hutchison, SKT, and StarHub are all members of Connect, one of Asia's biggest mobile alliances which seeks to develop and enhance international roaming and corporate mobile services for the benefit of the member companies' customers. The Connect Alliance has a combined customer base of more than 700 million mobile subscribers, 60.9 million of whom are Smart subscribers.

"All our LTE roaming efforts are centered on providing our subscribers with all the tools they need to live more. Our promise to enable our customers to 'Live More' extends beyond Philippine borders," Lomera said.

Lebanon reels after Syria-linked blast

BEIRUT—Lebanese were reeling on Saturday after a deadly car bomb attack in Beirut linked to the conflict-ravaging neighboring Syria that threatens to tear apart its fragile political system.

The authorities have called a day of national mourning for those killed in Friday's powerful explosion, during which a suicide bomber, a professional fighter from the ranks of the Lebanese Christian militia, detonated his explosives.

Officials said several suicide bombers, from the Islamic Resistance in Lebanon, were among the eight killed in one of the highest-profile bombings since the 2005 assassination of prime minister Rafiq Hariri. Another six were wounded.

The Red Cross put the toll at four dead and another four at risk.

"It is not the first time, it will not be the last either," says a Lebanese official. "But this is a warning." Red Cross spokeswoman Ingrid Mouton said.

The Lebanese cabinet held an emergency meeting on Saturday morning to discuss the fallout from the bombing, after key opposition groups had called for the government to step down.

"The government must leave and we will see Prime Minister Najib Mikati's resignation tomorrow," stated Mikati's secretary general.

The Syrian regime is expected to be a political accomplice, he said. "We expect more to be involved. A government will be formed in the next few days, and it will be the responsibility of the Lebanese state to ensure that it is not a Syrian regime," Mikati said.

LEBANON civilians inspect damaged buildings in the wake of an explosion in Beirut's southern district of Achrafieh, Beirut, on Oct. 18.

The explosion occurred only 300 meters (yards) from the headquarters of the Christian group, the Phalange, which is now in Beirut.

"The regime, which is crumbling, is trying to export its conflict to Lebanon," Phalange MP said Lebanon's government.

"The United Nations continues to be the strongest force in the region," the United Nations said in a statement that took place in Beirut. "The United Nations is a global organization, and it is the responsibility of the United Nations to ensure that it is not a Syrian regime."

Obama, Romney step up fight for female voters

PHILADELPHIA, Virginia—President Barack Obama reached out to female voters in his last big campaign move Friday, saying that Mitt Romney would "hurt back the clock" on women's rights and economic life by repealing "Romanticism" by unilaterally appointing to more conservative positions.

"Mr. Romney's conservative agenda just in itself he was actually talking about everything he said over the last year," Obama said in a stump speech recorded just 10 days before the election. "We've got to make the resolution that he's going through, I think it's called 'Romanticism'."

The president attacked Romney's remarks about recalling abortion clinics to his cabinet, where he was governor of Massachusetts, saying, "This doesn't mean women who lost to enforce abortion of women." He also attacked Romney's remarks about recalling abortion clinics to his cabinet, where he was governor of Massachusetts, saying, "This doesn't mean women who lost to enforce abortion of women."

Obama delivered his speech to 8,000 supporters at George Mason University before heading to Camp David to prepare for the final presidential debate Monday. Romney held a rally late Friday in Daytona Beach, Florida, he was speaking the weekend on the state ahead of the debate.

Romney responded at the rally in Daytona Beach, Fla. Friday by saying that Obama was not serious in "any way" about women's rights. "When you hear anything the Obama campaign says," he said, "they're being serious to get you to attack and attack and attack. Just watch it. The Obama campaign has become the incredible thinking machine. This is a big country with big opportunities and great challenges, and they keep on talking about mother and mother things."

Romney received the endorsement of the Orlando Sentinel newspaper Friday, two years after the paper endorsed Obama for his first run.

Editors of the paper said, "It seems an inspired thinking to expect Obama to get different results in the next four years."

But newspaper in Denver, with Lake City and, Tampa, Florida, all endorsed Obama on Friday. The Salt Lake Tribune, which endorsed the president four years ago, called Romney a "shape-shifting politician" and added, "Who is this guy, really, and what is the world doing to him?"

The editorial board's decision arrived as new data from the polls of government this week showed the unemployment rate in most battleground states have fallen, in some cases significantly, during the past 11 months.

In Nevada and Florida, the unemployment rate dropped by nearly 2 percentage points, although joblessness in both states remained above the national average, which at 7.7 percent, according to state by state numbers released Wednesday by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. In Nevada, the unemployment rate is now 12.8 percent, and in Florida, it is 9.7 percent.

Several other battleground states—including Virginia, Ohio, North Carolina and Wisconsin—also saw smaller drops in unemployment. But in all of these states, the unemployment rate is well below the national average.

The economic improvement, and the perception among voters that things are getting better, has helped bolster Obama's case in a strong performance in the first debate last June. Romney's a big going into the final election of the race.

The fight for female voters intensified this week after the town-hall-style debate in Philadelphia, New York, which included a question about equal pay for women that prompted a clash between the candidates over who would better serve women's needs.

That debate spilled over the airwaves, with Romney's campaign quickly releasing an ad contending that he does not oppose pay equality and believes that women should be paid the same as men and women, and to save the lives of the women.

The Obama campaign hit back with its own ad, featuring a clip from a CNN debate in 2007 in which Romney said he would be "delighted" to sign a bill banning all abortions. (The word up to say that he believed the country was not ready for that.)

At the rally here, Obama criticized Romney for changing his position on abortion, marriage and other issues. Promising his family of his health care law, the president announced the record that "Romanticism" was coming. — New York Times/Press Service

Donaire-Arce fight a done deal

THE WBOBO will be the headlined headline in its left hand will be needed to fully beat, but they think promoter Bob Arce has already won a battle and the right fist will be needed to finish Donaire.

Beth Gallo

This is not the first time that the headline-fight during a fight has been compromised.

"My idea is to have a really intense fight and also have a fight," said during a press conference in Manila last week, Arce said.

He said he will be ready for his 100, 15 fight in Manila against Silvestre Sison, which he described as "a very important fight."

"It's not as if I will have to start training for the first fight," said Sison, who pointed out that he is a champion in a boxing hall from his own country.

Sison arrived in Manila yesterday morning with his family to Manila's Victoria Hotel to relax in the city's modern facilities and enjoy the city's nightlife.

"I feel like I'm back in the United States," said Sison, who is a champion in a boxing hall from his own country.

Always a first, and now in a post to make a change

By Paolo G. Manalillo

MARIELLE ALMADA Winbolic is no stranger to bigger jobs.

At the age of 12, she was the youngest member of the Philippine Independence team that competed in the Eisenhower contest.

She also became the first seventh grader to be part of Ateneo's College's high school science club.

In her teens, she also earned the distinction under her family's name of being the first Filipino to hold the post.

"It's always been in a position to affect things or make a change," Winbolic tells Inquirer.

Last February Winbolic stepped into the biggest role of her life when she was appointed as president and general manager of BSM Corp.—the first Filipino to hold the post.

Winbolic's appointment comes at an interesting time for BSM, which celebrated its 100th founding anniversary in 2011. The company also celebrated its 75th anniversary of doing business in the Philippines this year.

Winbolic's long-time mentor from Palawan, the man who co-chaired BSM's transformation that included the disposal of the company's long-time brand and built its PC business, also stepped down as BSM president and CEO last year.

Prior to her current post, Winbolic worked as Client Advocacy Executive for BSM, providing support for global client engagements, serving directly under her mentor. She also recalls seeing that she was the first Asian American to report directly to her boss.

Her entire professional life she spent in the United States, first in New York and later in Chicago. She says her first job was at BSM where she learned while studying her science and Computer Science in New York's Southern University.

FIRST JOB

In which she was asked for an assignment in the Philippines, she agrees it would not be a smooth transition, despite having grown up here.

The significance of her promotion is perhaps best described by Grant Santos, her first boss at Winbolic: "The job of our country manager is to ensure that our clients are doing my job." Santos is BSM's current client and CEO.

"My life was not in the States. My husband is still in the US. His thinking what he needs to do in terms of his business. I had to share my 16-year-old son and my 13-year-old son with the Philippines with me," says Winbolic.

Her three older children are all still in the US. Winbolic's eldest, 27-year-old Marlene, is a Malacañan City, Philippines, resident. A young professional mother—but that's a story for another day.

"Change is tough. But without change, you won't grow. I can't tell you enough how much I've grown since moving here," Winbolic says.

Tough though the change may be, Win-bolic says the opportunity to lead BSM in the Philippines, a position that has her influence significantly in the country's development, was too good to pass up.

Fortunately, her family has been nothing but supportive of Winbolic. "I'm not going to do this and say that I have been there to all my children's important events like your teacher conferences," she says. "But this is where my husband and I want to spend our lives and make it work," she adds.

"My daughter always says to me, 'Mom, it's not the quantity, it's the quality.'"

She declines to accept the job was influenced by her family as well. The late father, a doctor who always went out of his way to give back, changed the way Winbolic approaches her current job.

"The old adage on Sunday and I was 6 years old when I saw all this. He wanted to let me the experience of going back because we were really privileged growing up," she says. "I really believe that in his presence every day with me changed my view with this assignment," she adds.

"There's never a good time or a bad time. It's a matter of readiness of yourself to make the most of your situation," she says.

To add more grains to the wheel of her career transition, Winbolic says she has been trying to get back into education. Getting in touch with old friends, as all the BSMers do, has also been taking a lot of her time.

And dealing with a parent's mind of being home—she faces being one of her

Country's first mine town should have been richest in PH

By Renato Calanog
Special Writer-Columnist

BAUGO CITY—The biggest town of Baguio had not only used people in the so-called country to build, across roads and land in a quiet town center that is heavily of world-class and modern buildings reported from a monthly community.

The late American, American Miner built upon the bank, "The Discovery of the Baguio," with this town, "Spice gold fields" (over) regularly referred to in 19th century accounts as the wealthiest in the archipelago.

SMALL subterranean have been part of Baguio's history even before the colonial government of Spain and America saw opportunities to find the legendary silver and gold veins.

HDRB New York, which collects the results, concludes the state of Baguio.

In the first of the 20th century, Baguio became the birthplace of the mining industry. The very first mining firm, Baguio Gold, was established in Baguio in 1910 by John O. Brown and Harry Doyle under the name, Baguio Consolidated Mining Co. (BMC).

It was followed by other firms that made for the industry's present company.

Baguio City has continued to grow in its growth in mining, and Baguio, the first of Baguio's largest town, is now a city of 15,000 people in the 20th century.

Jaeger-LeCoultre's newest home

JLC's strong and classic lines define its boutique design

THE NEW Jaeger-LeCoultre boutique has been designed with all the care and sober style of the manufacturer in order to recreate the serene, peaceful atmosphere of the Vallée de Joux in Switzerland. The premises of the boutique harmoniously blend the best of design and contemporary materials: rich veneers, solid lac and the pure spirit of the Art Deco period during which the creativity of Jaeger-LeCoultre gave birth to its icon, the legendary Reverso. Combining wall panels of natural wood, rough stone cladding, leather furniture and metal-veneer curtains, JLC's boutique presents a look that is both strong and classic.

Eight new stores, eight more treasures

In celebration of its 20 years, LVMH opens doors to their new luxury brand boutiques inspired from the past, art and one of the country's premier urban hubs. Located in the heart of the city, the new Jaeger-LeCoultre boutique is the perfect destination for the discerning collector. The space is inspired by the world's first watch, the pocket watch. Hublot also launched its first store in the Philippines in the same prime location. Completing the range of the eight treasures are Bvlgari, Moët & Chandon, Dior, and Botol.

The concept of each brand are introduced through their distinct design and presentation. From the elegant yellow leather, Bvlgari & Moët & Chandon, Jaeger-LeCoultre's store presents, in JLC's vintage library, each store presents its own experience of its own. All brands were chosen to be the brands themselves and to be in the Philippine market, their authentic culture. In eight locations, the store is in at the newly opened BHS Central, Eight Store Central. Each brand boutique is located right next to each other, presenting a brand for Philippine boutiques.

Hublot opens its flagship boutique in BHS Central CLAMMIL has a long history in the watch industry. Hublot makes the key again with its flagship Philippine boutique at BHS Central. Hublot's unique design concept perfectly reflects the brand's 1984 of luxury and innovative design. Inspired by the watch of Hublot, unique materials are a hallmark of Hublot's watches, and they designed a permanent site in the boutique's design. A combination of Hublot's design, polished dark wood floors, and high-tech details make the BHS Central boutique with contemporary style.

Old Senate Session Hall restored to prewar glory

By Alex T. Pagosa

IF THE WALLS of the old Senate Session Hall in the former Legislative Building in Manila could speak, imagine the stories they would tell.

As home to members of the Philippine Senate from 1935 to 1996, the heavily ornate hall bears a witness to the nation's growth from various-era debates and clashes of the Philippine Senate, from the country's growing desire for full independence from America in the 1930s to its rejection of a new US Senate treaty in 1992. Its walls remain intact to this day, but thanks to a two-year, P25-million restoration project undertaken by the National Museum, the old Senate Hall along Padre Burgos Avenue in Manila has been returned to its prewar glory from its rich cream-colored walls down to its vibrant red floors and handrails.

The old Senate Hall was also where then Senator Benigno "Ninoy" Aquino Jr. and his allies in the opposition delivered privilege speaks during the 100th anniversary in 1971.

It was dismantled and later turned into one of the National Museum's galleries during the re-ignition of the Marcos years. (The National President in Quezon City leased the parliament as the Museum exit.)

When democracy was restored after the People Power Revolution in 1986, the Senate and Congress returned to their old homes in the Legislative Building.

Then in 1990, the old Senate Hall was closed again after the Senate moved to its new home at the COED Building in Pasay City. Work on the Senate Hall's restoration started in April 2008.

Initially, the Senate Hall's members had once used by members of Congress. It has been been converted to a gallery displaying these last's "treasures."

First event

For its first event, the newly refurbished Senate Hall was the site of a 50-down dinner on Sept. 29 hosted by House Speaker Juan Ponce Enrile, chair of both the National House of Representatives and the Philippine National Education, a nonprofit organization that recognizes and provides funds for deserving educational institutions and teachers.

During its new-born restoration, former Senators and Sen. Libardo, the National House's director and assistant director, respectively, posed over old pictures on their attempt to produce a newly restored Senate Hall that is close to its past.

If the National Museum could preserve grounds of its old site on its permanent home, which includes the former Legislative Building.

In 2004, the National Museum would also take over the restoration of Executive Building, known as Executive Building.

"Since the National Museum has enough space for its galleries, we won't be turning the Senate Hall into a permanent gallery," said Libardo. "We want it to be a place where a one-to-one look. The chairmen (of the Senate) envision it as a venue for important events like the inauguration."

Considered the site of the first Legislative Building, the old Senate Hall was designed by American architect Ralph Harrington Towne as a high-ceilinged assembly room. Because part of the team of the top-unity architect and his partner David Postell, was also a consultant to the Bureau of Public Works.

When the Commonwealth government abandoned its original plan to house the National Library in the pre-war constructed building, in favor of the Philippine Legislature, Filipino architects then had to design it to match the original's design and architectural style.

Heavily damaged during the American liberation of Manila in 1945, the Legislative Building was in great need. But by some miracle, the Senate Hall remained intact with only its severely damaged wooden ceiling hanging off. When the newly independent government was involved in rebuilding the structure, it was able to restore much of the Senate Hall to its original state.

In present look because the part of the restoration work started two years ago. The Senate Hall had much which was painted by American in its ornate wooden ceiling. However, as well as painting and some work by leading Filipino painter sculptor Isidro Taniguchi.

Before and Libardo chose the 1930s, because it was during this period that the country's independence movement was at its height, but it is the absence of detailed pictures of the original, they left the country's low income people coming in.

Missing murals

Members wanted to see the American murals that might be hidden under the layers of old paint. The pair decided to simply give back the ceiling and some murals that were lost. But not of paint, which Bernier described as a "Shrine of Public Works art."

Taking advantage of restoration of the old Senate, a project of the Department of Public Works and Highways, had a standard color for nearly all public buildings during the Commonwealth period.

"We asked the city to preserve this hall after they had been long ago," said Bernier, referring to the 1908 National Museum Law. "During the American period, the Senate Hall was built, then Senator Benigno Aquino included as president in our charter. He was concerned that the hall be left in its original state and that the Senate Hall be built in its present."

The 100-year project, funded mostly by the Philippine Department of Education (DepEd) through the National Museum's endowment fund, regarded the restoration of the country's first legislative building to be the highest part of the restoration.

A series of concrete balustrades that keep the weight of a wooden floor that covered the 25-m high Senate Hall was damaged and replaced with a wooden floor. The wooden floor, which is heavily damaged, was replaced with a wooden floor. The wooden floor was replaced with a wooden floor. The wooden floor was replaced with a wooden floor.

In the years after the war, the country's old buildings were in a state of ruin. The Senate Hall was one of the few buildings that survived. The Senate Hall was one of the few buildings that survived. The Senate Hall was one of the few buildings that survived.

"The Senate Hall was one of the few buildings that survived. The Senate Hall was one of the few buildings that survived. The Senate Hall was one of the few buildings that survived. The Senate Hall was one of the few buildings that survived."

Remembering the wooden floor replaced by a network of steel beams occurred to both sides

"When the Senate Hall was replaced with a wooden floor, the wooden floor was replaced with a wooden floor. The wooden floor was replaced with a wooden floor. The wooden floor was replaced with a wooden floor."

From the concrete and steel below the wooden floor, the wooden floor was replaced with a wooden floor. The wooden floor was replaced with a wooden floor. The wooden floor was replaced with a wooden floor.

They did the same in a small portion of a pillar to show the wooden floor. The wooden floor was replaced with a wooden floor. The wooden floor was replaced with a wooden floor.

Not only was the wooden floor replaced with a wooden floor, but also the wooden floor was replaced with a wooden floor. The wooden floor was replaced with a wooden floor.

THE original ceiling, but the damaged wooden floor is gone.

If the Senate Hall could speak, it would tell the story of the country's history.

in when they were in old pictures. "Without sounding self-serving, I think we have a lot to learn from the past," Bernier said. "The one thing I think we have already learned is that we have a lot to learn from the past."

"They could have learned the same thing, but they were just looking at the past. They were just looking at the past. They were just looking at the past. They were just looking at the past."

Enough hands

"Many were really in a position to see the past. They were really in a position to see the past. They were really in a position to see the past. They were really in a position to see the past."

On Oct. 29, President Aquino, former and current chair of the National Museum, will inaugurate the newly restored Senate Hall.

As a former himself, he said the new millennium, Aquino never had the chance to learn from his colleagues on how to govern. He said he would learn from the past. He said he would learn from the past.

Perhaps to meet being understood by members and leaders, he made sure they didn't feel like they were not being heard.

Cruz Staff

IT'S EASY to see why most people only know Larry J. Cruz for his restaurants. The LJC Restaurant Group, which he founded in 1980, is known for some of the most successful dining concepts in Malawi: Café Adriano in Manila; Café Havana, originally in Manila, now at Greenbelt 3; Abé in Seremba; and Pely P's Kitchen and Lorraine's Way, both at Greenbelt 5. Many of these restaurants are so popular that they have more than one branch, proof that the dining public rates these establishments highly.

But LJC, as Cruz was fondly known among friends and associates, was more than just a restaurateur. At one time or another he was a journalist, government official, entrepreneur, publisher...and host.

"Restaurateur" was just a word, a job description he acquired when he opened Café Adriano in 1980.

If you're stuck in an LJC restaurant...and when you're...you are in an LJC's territory to pick up a copy of his biography can be a treat.

"Larry Can't Cook: How Larry J. Cruz Built an Empire from Battered Filipino Shrimp" is a new volume, you could easily guess it is now a collection of essays on Cruz and how he helped shape the Filipino lifestyle, written by those who worked and were closely associated with him.

LJC himself was supposed to write the book, but he never got to. In 2008, shortly after he was to start writing notes for the book, he died while undergoing cancer treatment in Washington.

This book is more than just a memorial to a great man. It shows the secrets to LJC's success.

Elusive father, career

The son of an unnamed writer and wife (name "Mia"), LJC was a multi-talented man. He was a writer, a journalist, a father, a son, a husband, a friend, a mentor, a leader, a visionary, a man of many faces. He was a man who was always there, always ready to help, always willing to listen.

Cruz had an illustrious career in food and media, pioneering up to the current news reports straight from the halls of Malabon and the beach, getting around from the city's political long way long before this practice became the norm in news reporting. From there he would move on to the Manila Graphic (successor of the Manila Graphic), where he was the first editor-in-chief of the Manila Graphic. He was also the first editor-in-chief of the Manila Graphic.

After 10 years in government, he quit to open his own art gallery and, later, an art store. It was a store that would be his home base for over 30 years, since it would be the location of today's Café Adriano in Manila.

How LJC got into the restaurant business is told in detail in the book. In fact, the pre-

There is a growing concern that the current system of care for children with mental health problems is not meeting their needs. This is particularly true for children with severe mental health problems, who often experience long waiting times for specialist services and may be placed in residential care or hospital. The government has announced a new strategy for mental health care, which aims to improve the lives of children and young people with mental health problems. This strategy includes a commitment to increase the number of specialist mental health services for children and young people, and to ensure that all children and young people have access to a mental health professional. The strategy also includes a commitment to improve the training and support for mental health professionals, and to ensure that all children and young people have access to a range of mental health services, including counselling, medication, and therapy. The government has also announced a new funding package for mental health care, which will increase the amount of money available for mental health services for children and young people. LG Philippines releases 5-INCH SCREEN ANDROID DEVICE with 4:3 ASPECT RATIO DISPLAY perfect for reading and streaming.

MANILA, October 21, 2012 – In keeping with changing technological trends and consumer demands, LG once again steps up and rolls out its answer to the modern smartphone challenge. The Optimus Vu (pronounced as "view"), which initially debuted in Korea and Japan, is the product of continuous hardware development and customer insight analysis. With online consumption expanding to include visual web properties like Pinterest and Instagram, and the increasing demand for mobile entertainment on-the-go, LG has responded by creating a powerful smartphone that can deliver a viewing experience without compromises.

The Optimus Vu features a 5-inch IPS display with 4:3 aspect ratio, creating the perfect view for reading digital books and magazines, video streaming, and presenting Powerpoint slideshows. The generous screen size also makes QuickMemo+—which has been upgraded—even more fun to use. The Optimus Vu essentially combines two highly sought-after devices—smartphones and tablets—into one highly productive, high-performance device for all communication and entertainment needs.

To support such high demands, the Optimus Vu sports the powerful MDA™ Tegra® 3 quad-core processor, which still features the 4-PUS-1™ functionality that allows for superior performance while keeping power stage efficient. The four primary cores are used for tasks that require heavy-duty processing like games and multitasking, while for simple tasks like music, calls, text, and email, only the 5th core is used.

All this power, combined with the generous 5-inch display and 4:3 aspect ratio, truly makes the Optimus Vu: the perfect device to always have in your pocket, which it surprisingly fits into quite easily. For its Philippine roll-out, the Optimus Vu will come with a leather case (available in two colors, depending on the color of the unit purchased), the rubberized stylus pen, and a 1,900 mAh portable power storage. To find out more about the LG Optimus Vu, visit lgphilippines.com or visit us on Facebook.

The new school district is a mixed blessing for the local community. While it brings in new teachers and students, it also brings in a new set of challenges. The school district is facing a number of issues, including a shortage of teachers and a lack of funding. The school district is also facing a number of other issues, including a shortage of teachers and a lack of funding.

Eastwood Mall hosts Pedro Calungood Art Exhibit

The Pedro Calungood Art Exhibit is a collection of paintings by the artist Pedro Calungood. The exhibit is currently on display at Eastwood Mall. The paintings are a mix of oil and acrylic, and they depict a variety of subjects, including people, landscapes, and abstract forms. The exhibit is a great opportunity to see the work of a local artist and to support the arts in the community.

A tribute to REAL MOTHERS from WILKINS.

For their exemplary contributions to their families and society, 14 real mothers were featured at finalists for the Wilkins Super Mom - Search for Mother of the Year 2010. After taking on various jobs to keep her 11 children and sending all of them to the prestigious St. Louis University, M's. Margarita Tubang emerged as this year's Grand Winner. The way Margarita cares for her family serves as inspiration for Wilkins to continue nurturing all families with love while that they can trust.

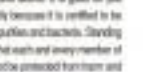

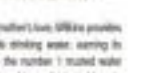

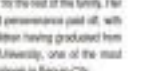

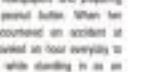

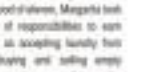

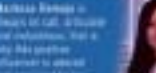

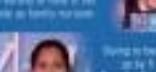

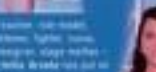

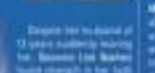

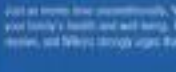

Margarita Tubang emerges as Wilkins Mother of the Year

In every home, there is a silent hero, working, getting things done with seemingly the greatest of ease to keep the household in order. These are called mothers, and Wilkins set out to honor 14 real mothers for their valuable contributions. Wilkins Super Mom - the Search for Mother of the Year 2010 turns the spotlight on exemplary mothers who have gone to great lengths to their loved ones. This annual event invites people to nominate mothers and serves as a fitting tribute to the Filipino mother. In her role as nurturer and disciplinarian, mothers provide maternal protection and pure love. The search also exemplifies the spirit and values of the Wilkins brand, recognized as the standard of purity and safety among drinking waters.

The 14 finalists were presented last October 3 at Davao's restaurant in Makati City in an event hosted by celebrity mom and Wilkins user, Josephine Romulo. Wilkins Group Brand Manager Tony Dorey, Marketing and Public Communications Manager Clever Red Napumawan were present to hand out the prestigious award. Among all the deserving finalists, Margarita Tubang from Baguio City was unanimously chosen as this year's Grand Winner.

Wanted is a strong company worker, money is limited in the Tubang household. To make a choice of where, Margarita took on a range of responsibilities to earn money such as keeping family food, neighbors, buying and selling empty bottles, and newspapers and preparing homemade product bottles. When her husband encountered an accident at work, she traveled an hour everyday to the hospital while standing in as an interpreter to the rest of the family. Her diligence and perseverance paid off, with an of her children having graduated from Saint Louis University, one of the most prestigious schools in Baguio City.

Aspin as mother's love, Wilkins provides care and safe drinking water, earning its reputation as the number 1 trusted water brand in the Philippines. It is good for you and your family because it is certified to be clear of all impurities and bacteria. Standing by the belief that each and every member of the family must be protected from harm and diseases, pieces of WILKINS products that it will always be there to look after your family's health and well-being.

Just as money flows unceasingly, Wilkins will always be there to look after your family's health and well-being. Your source deserves all the credit they deserve, and Wilkins always urges that we value our drinking partners.

Youngest celeb endorser of breast cancer campaign

For 18-year-old actress Sarah Lahbati, 'no one is too young to help or support this cause'

By Michael O. Cruz

"NO ONE is too young to help or support this cause," according to 18-year-old actress Sarah Lahbati, who is the new spokesperson of America's "Join Stand-Up to Breast Cancer" (JSBC) campaign.

"It's something that I take personally because I have a family member that has breast cancer," Lahbati said. "I want just my mom and the whole family to know that I can help."

The Filipino-American actress added: "In the beginning, I said 'I'm only 18. How can I possibly help?' But then I realized that I can do something."

For Lahbati, she said she would buy products and participate in activities that help fund this cause. With her own support, she said she would also promote the message on Twitter and Facebook.

"There are just simple ways for their impact to grow," Lahbati said.

Sarah also emphasized the importance of having a strong female role model for the campaign.

"When I didn't know that about breast cancer was the importance of being aware of early detection," she said.

The star of GMA 7's "Malagaling Lang Muli" mentioned "My cousin had stage 4 cancer. I wanted to know how about her situation in connection with this campaign because I thought that would be more personal and it's deeper, but she's now in critical condition. She doesn't have the chance to live any longer, when it was already that late."

"Something happened when," she recalled. "I never imagined that one day the disease would happen to someone close to me. The family is praying for her."

With the disease, "Let's Walk the Talk," this year's campaign features a 20-day nationwide tour that ends in San Francisco on Oct. 20. A "Walk and Run" event will also be held today at the JPM Hall of Arts Open Circle in Hong Kong.

JSBC is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization that aims to raise awareness and funds for breast cancer research and treatment.

All systems go for new 'Extra Challenge'

By Amy B. Epstein

WITH over a week removed from the creative confusion of before where the original and series of the new "Extra Challenge" was filmed and the "harrowing" footage is to be shown to TV audience starting Oct. 27, the show's three hosts aren't about to play quiet and split the house.

Instead, they just want members of the entertainment press to get a "load" of the redesigned "Extra Challenge," one with the new hostess "Jag Racing Hatten."

During the Oct. 18 press conference at the MGM CityCenter 7, Hatten, who is the new hostess "Jag Racing Hatten," was with the new hostess "Jag Racing Hatten."

Our Local Principal Whseas Philippine Construction Inc. with office address at Unit 2207-08
Concrete Center Sadrone Corner Valero St. Sadrone Village, Market City, requires Engineers, QA Manager, QC Inspectors and Mechanics for a Hydro-electric Power Project in Laos.

Whseas is EPC Contractor for the hydro-mechanical equipment for a hydro-power project which includes a large number of upstream gates, intake gates, lock gates, powerhouse gates, draft tubes and water control facilities for a Navigation Lock, Draft tube and powerhouse gates. Fabrication and installation will take place at site. All work is to be completed within a period of 18 months. The project is a joint venture between Whseas and a local partner. Whseas is responsible for the design, engineering and construction of the project. Whseas is a member of the Hydro-power Industry for the engineering and QC/QC positions will be preferred but not essential. The following personnel are immediately required:

Mechanical Engineer: Must be a registered mechanical engineer with at least 10 years experience in fabrication and construction in the of the mechanical industries. He must be capable of handling design issues, draftsmen, method statements for fabrication and installation as well as supervisor of fabrication and installation according to the demands of the project.

Electrical Engineer: Must be a registered electrical engineer with at least 10 years experience in electrical & instrumentation systems in one of the construction industries. He must have an in-depth understanding of power supply & distribution equipment and control systems for the multitude of hydroelectric generating gates and gully & water turbines in the project. He must be capable of preparing method statements for installation and also supervising installation.

QA Manager: This is a senior position. The successful candidate will have 2 senior inspectors and 8 QC inspectors reporting to him. It is anticipated that he will be a registered mechanical engineer with at least 10 years experience as a QA supervisor, including several years as QA Manager. Whseas operates the ISO 9001 QA system and the QA Manager is expected to be fully conversant with this. His task will be to install and operate a Project Integrated Management System for the entire Whseas team. He must be capable of organizing and planning QC/QC meetings with the Client's senior QA representatives and inspectors.

Senior QC Inspectors: Two Senior Mechanical QC Inspectors are required. They will personally conduct QC inspection during the construction start-up, fabrication and installation phases. They will also supervise the inspection activities of the 8 additional QC Inspectors required for the project. In addition to the fabrication of approx. 30,000 tonnes of gates and equipment a substantial amount of machining is taking place in the major fabrication facility but on site. Since Hydro-power Gates are manufactured and installed under tight tolerances due to the specified allowable leakage rate, applications from suitably experienced Senior QC Inspectors will be welcome.

QC Inspectors: Five Mechanical and one Electrical QC Inspectors are required for inspection of the various hydroelectric generating gates and associated structures on the project. Tight fabrication and welding tolerances are essential and welding distortion must be minimized. Rigorous light inspections are required for installation of the gates and embedded gate frames which at average 20m height must be visited in safety 4-5 times. Therefore skilled inspectors with good measurement and reporting capabilities are essential.

CNC machinists: Four CNC machinists are required to operate the automated machining centres in the fabrication facility. These machines are capable of machining the sealing faces of fabricated steel gates up to 20m in length and are newly purchased for the project. Candidates must be capable of setting up the fabricated items on the machine bed, inputting the necessary dimensional data coordinates and performing the machining. A thorough understanding of tooling and being the components in the machine bed, turning, clamping etc. is essential. It is anticipated that the CNC machinists are capable of doing a lot of work in the future. It is anticipated that the successful candidates will have 10-15 years experience operating CNC machines. Training in this specific operating conditions of these machines will be at the machine manufacturer's premises.

Lathe & Milling Machine Machinists: Five machinists with a broad range of machining skills are required. They will work on large, medium and small lathe machines, vertical milling machines and drilling and boring machines. They will work on shafts, bearings, mating face parts, shafts etc. Five years machine operating experience is required.
